Healthcare employers, manufacturers, transportation companies, and financial institutions rely on Brittany Stancombe Hopper for representation in all aspects of federal and state court litigation involving allegations of discrimination, harassment, retaliation, and wrongful discharge. Approachable and easy to talk to, Brittany builds rapport with clients as she investigates the underlying facts of employment disputes. Her experience includes:

- The Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA)
- The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA)
- The Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA)
- Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964
- The National Labor Relations Act (NLRA)
- The Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA)
- The Tennessee Human Rights Act (THRA)

Brittany also assists employers drafting non-compete and non-solicitation agreements and obtaining temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions against former employees who violate the contractual terms of those agreements. Additionally, Brittany assists clients in developing employee policies and handbooks.

Up Close

Brittany enjoys running and spending time with her family. She is also an avid traveler and once had the opportunity to meet the Iron Lady, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, while interning at the Institute of Economic Affairs in London, England. Brittany and her husband Andrew love the great outdoors and frequently take their two standard poodles – Thatcher and Reagan – along with them for their adventures. Between church activities, work, outdoor fun, and quality time with family and friends, the Hopper family is always on the go.
