PRACTICE RESOURCE

Drafting Facility Policies for Returning Explanted Devices: Key Legal and Practical Considerations

Jennifer L. Weaver and Carol J. Brass

Jennifer L. Weaver is a Partner and Group Leader, Government Investigations/White Collar Defense, at Waller Lansden Dortch & Davis LLP, Nashville, TN. Contact her via email at jennifer.weaver@wallerlaw.com.

Carol J. Brass is an associate in the Healthcare Regulatory Group at Waller Lansden Dortch & Davis LLP, Nashville, TN. Contact her via email at carol.brass@wallerlaw.com.

Weaver and Brass: Returning Explanted Devices

CONTENTS

Introduction .......................................................................................................................... 115

Drafting an Explanted Device Policy ............................................................................. 116
  General considerations ................................................................................................. 117
  Scope ............................................................................................................................ 118
  Presumption regarding release of explanted devices ................................................. 121
  Standard procedure for treatment of explanted devices ............................................ 129

Other Legal Considerations .......................................................................................... 132
  Recall/malfunctioning devices and spoliation of evidence ........................................ 132
  State medical device regulations ............................................................................... 134
  OSHA infectious disease waste handling regulations ................................................. 135
  EPA disposal of battery-containing devices regulations ............................................. 136
  FDA regulated medical devices .................................................................................. 136

Conclusion ....................................................................................................................... 137