A member of Waller's Corporate practice, Cristina Lue assists healthcare clients with governance matters, mergers and acquisitions, and other complex corporate transactions. Her combined in-house and government background provides her with a valuable perspective for healthcare organizations pursuing strategic transactions.

Cristina has experience in both corporate and government settings, including six years serving as in-house counsel. Prior to joining Waller, Cristina served as corporate counsel for a large insurance claims management company and as a senior attorney for a financial services company, where her work focused on SEC filings, negotiating settlements, evaluating private securities transactions and guiding those organizations through due diligence efforts and regulatory compliance.

In the public sector, Cristina served as a public health policy analyst for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) where she identified key legislation and reviewed newly implemented federal laws, rules and regulations. Clients benefit from her insider perspective regarding compliance with ever-changing government regulations.

Cristina is licensed in Georgia and practicing in Tennessee subject to Tennessee Supreme Court Rule 7, Article X, Section 10.07 pending admission to practice in Tennessee.
